

A Treason of the Intellectuals?

International Scientific and Intellectual Relations with Germany during the Nazi Era

Programme

Thursday, December 8

9.00–9.15	welcome
9.15–10.00	Mark Walker , key note
10.00–10.30	Clara Fernando , In the middle of the storm: The Academy of Sciences of Lisbon between science, international politics, and neutrality (1919–1945)
	break
10.45–11.15	Geert Somsen , Science in the New Order/Neuordnung/Nuovo Ordine/Novus Ordo: German-Italian relationships as reflected in the 1942 Rome exhibit Scienza Universale
11.15–11.45	Helke Rausch , Sympathy with the Devil? American support for German science after 1933
11.45–12.15	Annika Berg , A most popular destination: Nazi Germany as portrayed in Swedish medical travel reports
	lunch
1.00–1.30	Maria Zarifi , Devoted and refrained loyalties: The medical community in Greece during the time of German National Socialism
1.30–2.00	Pascal Germann , The politics of “neutral” science: Swiss geneticists and their relations to Nazi Germany
2.00–2.30	Per Lundin , Swedish-German networks among agricultural academics during the Interwar period and World War II
2.30–3.00	Cláudia Ninbos , German-Portuguese scientific networks in agronomy and plant breeding research
	coffee
3.30–4.00	Marcus Wien , Transfer of technology and ideology: The role of German know-how and the Nazi agrarian ideology in the Bulgarian model farm program “Obrastsovo Selo” (1937–1944)
4.00–4.30	Sven Steinberg , “Nazis in the Woodpile”: The exchange of German and US foresters between knowledge and ideology (1934–1938)
4.30–5.00	Matthias Berg , Changing positions: German historiography and the International Committee of Historical Sciences, 1933–1945
5.00–5.30	Fabian Link , Großraum Europa and the Medieval Germanic Reich: Hektor Ammann, Swiss neutrality, and the völkisch idea of the Middle Ages
5.30–6.00	Grzegorz Krzywiac , Between public engagement and political division: The curious case of the Polish intellectual Tadeusz Zieliński
7	dinner

Friday, December 9

9.00–9.45	Susanne Heim, key note
9.45–10.15	Karl Christian Lammers , The Danish Germanist Carl Roos
10.15–10.45	Johannes Dafinger , “Pro-German” intellectuals and the German bilateral friendship societies
	break
11.00–11.30	Tim Kirk , Was there an emergent Axis intelligentsia? Intellectuals, cultural workers and the press in south-eastern Europe 1938–1945
11.30–12.00	Daniel Knegt , “Putting an end to the old French-German hatred”: French Europeanist intellectuals between pacifism, fascism and collaboration
	lunch
12.45–1.15	Matthew Kott & Terje Emberland , Himmler’s soft power: Transnational networking and SS foreign policy in Northern Europe
1.15–1.45	Marco Nase , Building networks abroad: German support for pro-German academics in Sweden
1.45–2.15	Michael Wedekind , German and Italian scholars between collaboration and controversy: Spatial planning and socio-ethnic reorganization in a common sphere of interest
2.15–2.45	Ben Martin , International legal cooperation in the Nazi-Fascist New Order
	coffee
3.15–3.45	Maricío (Maria) Janué , Spain’s national character and Hispanidad in Nazi Germany
3.45 – 4.15	André Felipe Cândido da Silva , German cultural policy during the National-Socialism in Brazil and intellectual networks involving both countries (1933–1942)
4.15–4.45	Hans Joachim Bieber , Some remarks on cultural relations between Germany and Japan 1933–1945
4.45–5.00	closing remarks